

Strasbourg - France - 26, 27 et 28 octobre 2009
4èmes assises européennes du paysage

Organized by : La Fédération Française du Paysage &
L'interprofession Val'hor

AT THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE

Delegated organizer : CYBERGIES, La Paysagence

What are the landscape and environmental implications of sustainable development and who will they affect? How do climate change responses and sustainable development drivers take landscape into account, if at all?

These questions and their consequences for tomorrow's urban and rural landscapes, are the core of the 4th Assises européennes du paysage – the 4th Conference of European Landscape.

The objective of these three days is to create a venue for debate and reflection between elected officials, project managers, innovators, entrepreneurs, and producers in Europe.

THE OCTOBER 26TH SYMPOSIUM "Sustainable Development, Does it Have a Form?" will question the new landscape aesthetics generated by sustainable development in relation to the recommendations of the European Landscape Convention.

THE OCTOBER 27TH "GREEN CITY" FORUM will be based on presentations from the initiators of this European project and will highlight findings from research, as well as practical models from throughout Europe.

THE OCTOBER 28TH MOBILE WORKSHOPS will take in cross-border site visits to give examples of the arguments put forward during the first two days of the conference.

THE FORUM GREEN CITY,
A EUROPEAN ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Today's chair, Bertrand Tierce, Journalist

« Green City » is a European civic-minded approach, which aims to establish urban areas as places for improving life. Places where green, environmental management and urban nature can provide citizens with the benefits of a quality of life, well being, and social ties while at the same time delivering environmental protection. These benefits are equally valuable to our economic, ecological and cultural heritage. « Green City » meets the demands of society for living together, participation in cultural choices and integration in a policy of contemporary urbanism.
